President's Message

2012-2013: An exciting and challenging academic year for CCC

Cumberland County College continued building for the future this past year. A new web-based system enabled the College to computerize admissions, registration, financial aid, purchasing, accounting, and human resource functions, while allowing students to apply online, register for courses, and pay tuition and fees through a new student Web portal. A smartphone app provides links to a campus map, key phone numbers, course schedules and more.

The College witnessed the arrival of its first satellite location in Millville. Donated by the Cumberland County Homemaker – Home Health Aide Service Board to the CCC Foundation, the Paula J. Ring Education Center houses CCC's Workforce and Community Education department, offering contract training and programs to prepare students for careers in health care and teaching, as well as the for-credit LPN training program.

The Foundation continued its crucial work last year by hosting the Starlite Gala, the School Counts! Golf Classic, a dedication ceremony for the library's new Holocaust Collection, and the College's first Hispanic Outreach Forum. Students received more than $500,000 in Foundation scholarships.

The College's 2012-2017 Strategic Plan took full effect across the campus through initiatives to improve student engagement and completion. CCC's membership in the nationwide "Achieving the Dream" program has helped us focus and drive these student success efforts forward.

Developmental math and English courses were redesigned, streamlined or piloted with a blend of diagnostic and online components, traditional lectures, and supplemental instruction. A developmental English course achieved significant increases in student success, and math students participating in drop-in supplemental tutoring achieved higher success rates.

The College continued infusing Service Learning components throughout its curriculum. More than 30 Service Learning courses have been launched since last fall, engaging two dozen faculty members, 200 students and 32 community partners while providing tangible benefits for the community and invaluable student experiences.

All that activity failed to distract us from our primary job – educating the next generation of technicians, professionals and leaders. The dedication of our faculty, staff, students, and alumni, who have contributed so much to the College's evolution since its founding 46 years ago, is as strong as ever. I am sure this diverse community of individuals, working together, will lead Cumberland County College into a very successful future.

Sincerely,

Thomas Isekenegbe

Commencement

CCC celebrates its 46th graduating class

Kelsie Macera, 2013 Student Speaker

On May 16, Cumberland County College's Class of 2013 took center stage at commencement as they reached a milestone in their educational journey. The 575 graduates reflected the diversity of the community, representing nations from across the globe. Ranging in age from 18 to 63, the class underscored the importance of lifelong learning as 21 of the graduates were over the age of 50.

The graduates serve as role models for their families and friends. Female students represented 69 percent of the graduating class, with 394 women and 181 men receiving their degrees from Cumberland County College. The majority of the graduates plan to continue their education and transfer to a four-year institution.

The most popular majors among the 2013 graduating class were nursing, justice studies, liberal arts, elementary/secondary education, and social service/gerontology.

In addition to the CCC graduates, 192 students who attended classes at Cumberland's on-campus Shirlee and Bernard Brown University Center received their diplomas from partnering colleges.

Keynote speaker Dr. Jack P. Varsalona, president of Wilmington University, told the graduates, "I know wherever you are, whatever you end up doing, you will use your gifts to make sure that others have the same opportunity that we are celebrating today."

Cumberland County College faculty and staff were recognized by the graduates for their dedication in providing quality higher education. The graduates' family members received a heartfelt round of applause for their part in making the evening's celebration possible. "Settle for nothing less than what you know you are worth," student speaker Kelsie Macera told her fellow classmates. "Make excellence a priority in all that you do and in all that you strive for."

"The more you help others succeed, the more you will succeed."

- Dr. Jack P. Varsalona, President, Wilmington University

"Far from being the end, this is the beginning of all your promising tomorrows."

- Dr. Keith C. Figgs, Chairman, CCC Board of Trustees

Advisor of the Year, Jaime Connolly, and Professor of the Year, Nicholas Lebra Jr., lead the procession of Cumberland County College's Class of 2013.

2012-2017 Strategic Plan

A community of partnerships

Cumberland County College continues to build a community of partnerships as it moves forward with the implementation of its five-year strategic plan. The plan's three Directions include: Student Engagement and Completion, Leadership and Service Learning, and Economic and Workforce Development.

The 2012-2017 Strategic Plan is a valuable guide for strengthening the community by providing opportunities for people to improve their lives through education.

The plan calls for working with community groups to integrate service learning into the College's programs of study. To enhance economic development, Cumberland County College will partner with businesses, industries and community groups to implement entrepreneurial initiatives.

As Cumberland County College continues along the pathways outlined by the 2012-2017 Strategic Plan, we must work together to transform the ideas that were generated by local leaders and the College community into real, vibrant programs and services that will change students' lives forever.

Since the College's and the County's futures are intertwined, we need our leaders to continue sharing their expertise and time as we move forward as a team, preparing residents for success in the 21st Century.

2012-2017 Strategic Plan

DIRECTION 1 • Student Engagement and Completion

Cumberland County College will increase student success and completion.

Goal 1 – Increase the college readiness of entering students.
Working with its community partners such as K-12 school districts, the One-Stop and community-based agencies, CCC will increase the percentage of college-ready students.

Goal 2 – Increase the number of students successfully completing developmental courses and reduce the time students spend in developmental education.
CCC will implement early intervention procedures to target and intervene with students at risk for successful completion in order to increase developmental course completion rates.

Goal 3 – Increase the number of students enrolling in and successfully completing gatekeeper courses.
Across all groups, CCC will increase enrollment in and successful completion of gatekeeper and college-level courses and will decrease the disparity in successful completion rates among various demographic groups (gender/age/socio-economic status/race-ethnicity).

Goal 4 – Increase retention rates for all students.
CCC will make fundamental changes to advisement services to provide an integrated system that will support student engagement and success in order to increase retention rates.

Goal 5 – Increase the number of students completing degrees and certificates.
The number of first-time, full-time degree-seeking students completing degrees and certificates within three years will increase.

Goal 6 – Make comprehensive and fundamental college-wide changes in order to support student success.
Specific staff development programs for College faculty and staff will be developed and offered beginning in Spring 2012 in order to increase the focus on student success strategies.

DIRECTION 2 • Leadership and Service Learning

Cumberland County College will integrate leadership and service learning across the curriculum.

Goal 7 – Align all of the College's leadership programs and establish a leadership component in relevant college courses.

Align goals of leadership programs such as Pathways Leadership, Student Pathways Leadership, and Leadership Cumberland County in order to increase the number of college programs that will have a leadership component.

Goal 8 – Collaborate with community groups to develop and integrate Service Learning into academic and non-academic programs.

Integrate Service Learning programs into academic and non-academic areas beginning in Fall 2012.

DIRECTION 3 • Economic and Workforce Development

Cumberland County College will serve as a catalyst for local and regional economic and workforce development initiatives.

Goal 9 – Revise current programs and create new programs and options in key sectors to match the needs of the local and regional economy.

The College will offer academic programs with skills and knowledge that will meet the needs of local and regional employers.

Goal 10 – Collaborate with local and regional businesses, industries, community groups and related institutions to implement appropriate partnerships for entrepreneurial initiatives.

Develop and implement entrepreneurial initiatives that will enhance the business and employment climate in the county and region.

Facilities

College begins first phase of its Facilities Master Plan

Cumberland County College broke ground on May 17 as Phase I of the ambitious $10.5 million Facility Master Plan project got under way.

Improvements to the campus infrastructure will result in a much more "user-friendly" environment with increased safety at student drop-off points, and improved sidewalk configurations and road crossings for better access to parking lots A through F.

Site work began in preparation for the expansion and renovation of the Administration Building. More than 45 years old, this structure is the last of the original campus buildings to be renovated. The Administration Building will be getting a 4,000-square-foot addition, and the extra space will allow the College to consolidate its administrative offices.

The Academic Building will also get upgrades that include more classrooms, energy-efficient windows, an elevator to enhance accessibility, and student collaboratoriums.

Phase I of the project is expected to be completed by March 2014.

The construction will ultimately lead to a long-term gain for Cumberland County College students, faculty, staff and the community.

This rendering shows some of the buildings and expansions planned under CCC's 2011-2018 facilities master plan.

Facilities Master Plan Highlights

Construction under the 2011-2018 Facilities Master Plan includes the following components:

- A new library
- Converting the current library into a technology center when the new library is completed
- Three academic buildings
- An addition to the administration building
- An athletic field house
- An addition to the Paul Navone Healthcare Education Center
- An addition to the Frank Guaracini Jr. Fine and Performing Arts Center
- Two additions to the Philip Alampi Science Center
- Three additions to the student enrollment and services center

Grant Highlights

Grants Summary

A variety of federal, state and foundation grants supported student success initiatives and program improvements at Cumberland County College in the past year. The largest of these include two federal grants, the longstanding federal Student Support Services grant and the Title III Strengthening Institutions grant and the state-supported Educational Opportunity Fund, Carl Perkins Career and Technical Education grant and GEAR UP/College Bound grants.

The $2 million Title III project will enter its fourth year in fall 2013. This program aims to strengthen student retention by improving students' college readiness through a summer bridge program, retention counseling, supplemental instruction and faculty development. The centerpiece of CCC's Title III grant was the purchase of the new Datatel/Ellucian enterprise resource planning (ERP) system. The new system has enabled the College to improve its data-driven planning and decision-making and automate its admissions, registration, financial aid, purchasing, financial, and human resource processes. It also supported creation of the MyCCC web portal. All students now have their own portal home page, which connects them directly to web-based campus services and functions such as course registration and scheduling, the College's admissions application, and payment processes.

Last spring, the state released a bond-funded grant program to support construction of new facilities and acquisition of new equipment for programs at colleges and universities throughout New Jersey. The College applied for, and is receiving, $1.7 million to support renovations of the Academic Building, installation of a new fiber-optic network, and creation of a Network Operations Center behind the library, plus $750,000 to purchase instructional and institutional equipment for a variety of programs and offices.

The 2012-2013 year marked the second year of a six-year GEAR UP grant operated by Cumberland County College and focused specifically on the Bridgeton School District. GEAR UP offers a rigorous preparatory program for several hundred Bridgeton middle school and high school students during the academic year and summer. The grant amount increased to $290,000 in Year 2 and was supplemented by a $100,000 College Bound grant. Both grants are provided by the N.J. Secretary of Higher Education.

Students pursuing their GED (General Education Development) credential benefited from the College's fourth year of participation in the Cumberland/Salem Adult Basic Education (ABE) Consortium grant, which provides free instruction for students who did not complete high school. Fifty-two students graduated with their GEDs from the CCC program in June, and three received full-tuition scholarships to the College.

An array of smaller grants have supported varied initiatives, including a new grant from TD Foundation to support institution-wide development of Service Learning courses; the Return to Learn program for adults returning to college; the MSU Early Childhood Education teacher training program; the 21st Century Community Learning Center middle-school literacy program; several performing arts grants including the Dodge Foundation Legacy (Holocaust) Project; and more.

Technology Highlights

New technology enables CCC to better serve students, community

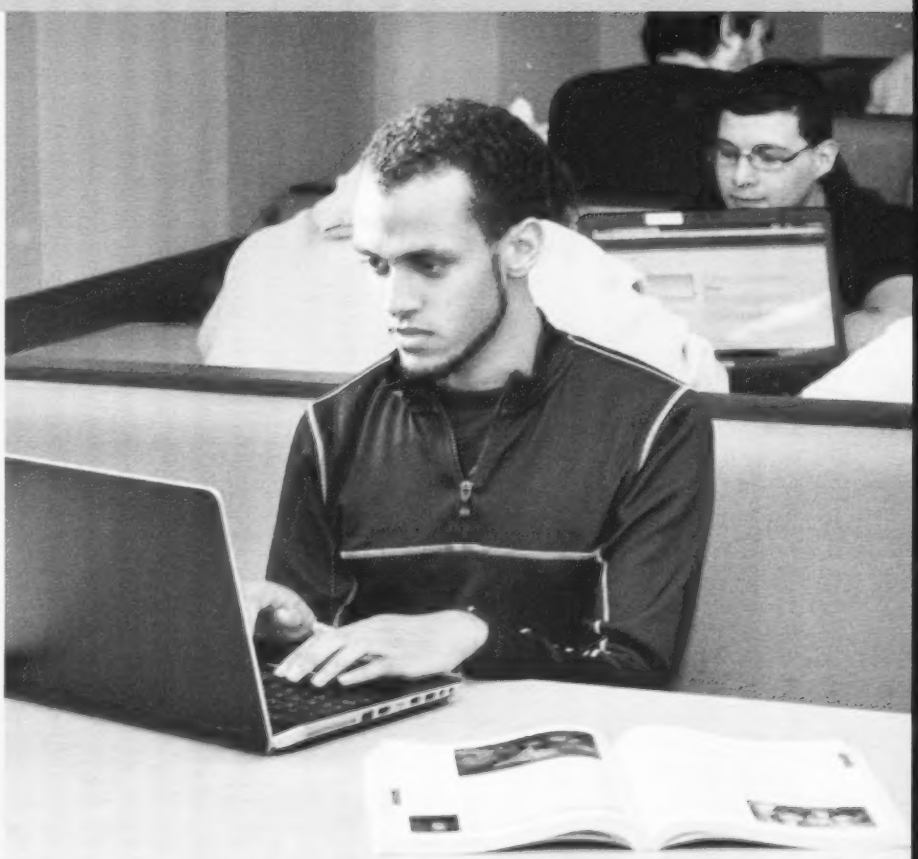
Cumberland County College's ambitious implementation of the Colleague system by Ellucian – a new web-based system used by students, faculty and staff – is winding down and will be completed over the coming fiscal period.

To date, more than 70 employees have been involved in the conversion and have completed more than 10,000 hours of training on the new system. Milestones accomplished over the past year included the implementation of an online admission application, a student mobile information system for smart phones and tablets, a new classroom and campus event scheduling system and an up-to-date and accurate degree audit capability.

The College moved away from three separate and disjointed email systems previously used by faculty and staff, adjunct instructors and students, to Google's web-based email system. Students transitioned to Gmail at the start of the Fall 2012 semester, followed by adjunct instructors and faculty. The new system is a significant improvement in email technology, featuring many new features and with much more versatility and reliability than the previous email systems.

Wireless docks were installed throughout the campus in the spring. The new docks are equipped with a wireless technology that allows them to automatically sync with the time on the College's telecommunications network. This capability eliminates the need to manually set more than 100 docks twice a year to accommodate daylight saving time changes. More importantly, each of the classroom docks now shows the same time, which greatly improves the coordination of class start and end times across the campus.

Installation began on a new Learning Management System (LMS), Blackboard Version 9. During the spring semester, faculty members were trained on the new system and their distance learning courses were modified to adhere to the system's standards. The new LMS is much more user friendly, has several new features and is much easier to administer. Students will find the system easier to understand and use, resulting in a greatly improved distance learning experience.



This new technology ensures that Cumberland County College will be well positioned for the anticipated growth of the next decade.

Partners in Education

Benefactors enable students to learn in state-of-the-art facilities

Many opportunities for student success are made possible by our benefactors – men and women in our community who donate their money, time and expertise to make it possible for CCC to offer more programs and services. All you need to do is stroll throughout our beautiful campus, or tour our new Workforce Education site in Millville, to see the major positive impact our benefactors have made at Cumberland County College.

The Cumberland County Homemaker – Home Health Aide Service Board donated its administration building and parking lot to Cumberland County College in October through the CCC Foundation. Named the Paula J. Ring Education Center, the facility is located at 10 Buck Street in Millville. The College began utilizing the 7,200-square-foot building in February to conduct credit and non-credit programs, including Phlebotomy, Clinical Nurse Assistant, Pharmacy Technician, Medical Coding, and several others.

Hundreds of entertaining and educational events are held every year at the Frank Guaracini Jr. Fine and Performing Arts Center. Corporate and community meetings are held daily at the George Luciano Family Conference Center. Students learn essential lessons in caring for people in the Paul Navone Healthcare Education Center which features modern laboratories and multifunctional classrooms. And hundreds of students are earning bachelor's and master's degrees on campus at the Shirlee and Bernard Brown University Center.

These facilities would not exist without our major benefactors and all of those who think enough of their community that they chose to help make life better for others. These individuals have provided opportunities for our residents to improve their lives through higher education, which is the most noble of causes since education is the great enabler.

A degree, and the knowledge acquired while earning it, can never be taken away. It's not simply our benefactors' generous gifts, but the gesture that makes a world of difference in serving our students and the community – now and in the future.

Frank Guaracini Jr. Arts Center

A cultural hub

Some 397,000 patrons of all ages have been entertained, educated, informed and thrilled by actors, singers, dancers and speakers since the Luciano Theatre opened in 1995.

The Frank Guaracini Jr. Fine and Performing Arts Center had another great year in 2012-2013. More than 18,500 patrons saw a wonderful variety of performances – either through professional performing attractions, dynamic in-house productions or exciting rental activities.

Major programming of the season included a sold-out performance of "Swan Lake" performed by the Russian National Ballet Theatre, as well as an appearance by Dr. John and The Blind Boys of Alabama, which brought together a member of the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and the multiple Grammy-winning group for the spectacular performance "From Spirituals to Funk."

Two major grants allowed the Guaracini Center to present two very distinctive performances.

Direct from Mexico City and supported by a grant from the Mid-Atlantic Arts Foundation's "Southern Exposure: The Performing Arts of Latin America" program, Teatro de Linea was in residence for a week around performances of "Amarillo," a powerful theatrical piece about immigration.

The Dodge Foundation provided major funding, along with a gift in memory of Harry Kejzman and in honor of Lilly Kejzman and Sherry Kejzman-Soutiere by Helen Kejzman, to support the Carolyn Dorfman Dance Company for a residency and performances of "The Legacy Project," a compelling set of dance pieces set against the Holocaust.

The FamilyTime productions of "Click, Clack, Moo" and "The Little Engine That Could" were popular, as were their school-day performances.

Cumberland County College Theater Arts presented the uproarious comedy "Noises Off" in the fall, and the season ended with an upbeat and toe-tapping production of "Footloose."

Noises Off

Jazz and gospel programming were provided by rising jazz star bassist Ben Williams, who performed with his band, Sound Effect, and The Campbell Brothers, who rocked the Luciano Theatre with "Sacred Steel," their blend of gospel, blues and soul played on steel guitars.

The popular Down Jersey series was well represented with "String Masters" featuring Tony Trischka and world-renowned guitarist Beppe Gambetta. The "Celtic Celebration" sold out for the third consecutive year when it featured local favorite and All-Ireland Fiddle Champion, ten-year-old Haley Richardson.

George Luciano Family Conference Center

721 events held at Luciano Conference Center, a first-rate facility

Area businesses, community organizations, county agencies, professional and civic associations, along with Cumberland County College departments and clubs, held 721 different events in the George P. Luciano Family Center for Public Service and Leadership in 2012-2013.

The events encompassed 1,148 dates as some events took place over multiple days. The single and multi-day events included training seminars, banquets, meetings and conferences. Nonprofit and community organizations utilized the facility for 167 events.

The outstanding, full-service facility hosted events for five to 500 people in its 320-seat Banquet Room which can be divided into three rooms, the Executive Board Room, a Forum Room with tiered seating, and several meeting rooms.

Guests enjoyed advanced, user-friendly technology services and equipment including Wi-Fi Internet with Smart Board technology, satellite uplinks for global conferences, LCD large-screen projectors and many other features.

The center features on-site food and beverage services and professional event planning services.

Shirlee and Bernard Brown University Center

Facility allows students to earn advanced degrees on CCC's campus

The Shirlee and Bernard Brown University Center offers incredible convenience for students to earn bachelor's and master's degrees from senior institutions right here on Cumberland's campus.

The University Center provides a way for residents – many who have job and family responsibilities – to grow and stay in the county, helping to make the community's economy stronger.

Having opened in 2008, it's difficult to imagine how we got along without this remarkable facility and the university partners that provide the opportunity for higher education in it every day.

More than 450 students enroll for courses per semester at the University Center and enrollment is projected to continue growing as more outstanding programs are established.

The University Center houses 20 bachelor's and master's degree programs offered by Fairleigh Dickinson University, Montclair State University, Rowan University and Wilmington University.

The degree programs offered by our university partners are a perfect fit with the College's career education pathways in the areas of business, education, engineering technology, healthcare and justice studies. Approximately seventy-five percent of the students enrolled at the University Center are Cumberland County College graduates.

Workforce and Community Education

County residents participated in a varied portfolio of programs

The Cumberland County College Workforce Education division includes the Allied Health Institute, the Industrial Arts Institute, and professional development. Cumberland County College's Workforce Education has been able to respond quickly to a changing market with workforce development opportunities. This year, the College provided certificate-based training in advanced manufacturing to 36 residents of the county, many of whom got jobs after completing the program.

Students can prepare for a "career in a year" by earning certifications through a wide array of short-term program offerings including, phlebotomy technician, massage therapy, personal trainer, pharmacy technician, medical coding and billing, clinical medical assistant and teacher development.

Cumberland County College also provided services to children in the county through the Summer Academy for Kids program. During the summer of 2012, more than 300 children – ranging in age from 5 to 17 – participated in 126 different courses over a nine-week period. By offering the SAFK program, Cumberland County College has an opportunity to positively influence students who will soon be ready for college.

Student Activities

Engaging students to make a difference in their community

Offering many programs and services for students, the office of Student Activities had an active and successful year. With numerous active dubs and organizations, a comprehensive Student Pathways Leadership Institute, and more than 165 student programs offered, the office keeps CCC's students energenic and engaged. More than 1,684 students participated in Student Activities programs and 254 students were active in student clubs and organizations.

Abundant monthly activities included Fall Fest, Alcohol Awareness Week, Adopt-a-Family Thanksgiving program; Celebration of Lights; Dr. MLK Jr. Service Days; Black History Month programs; Health and Wellness programs; a Military Honors event co-sponsored by the Cumberland County Freeholders, Cumberland County Veteran's Affairs Department and the Student Senate; Spring Fling and the annual Graduation Barbecue. Added this year was a service learning/community service program for Super Storm Sandy relief in November, assisting bayshore towns in a clean-up project. All the programs engaged the campus and inspired students to be more involved.

The comprehensive Student Pathways Leadership Institute (SPLI) featured 8 graduates, with dynamic and thought-provoking projects to culminate their year. Overall, 92 CCC students have graduated from the program.

Cumberland County College's collaborative approach affords great community partnerships as well as many opportunities for student involvement, leadership, service and self-exploration.

Student Governance

The Student Senate represented the student body well on governance councils. Members were directly involved in changes to the College's campus smoking policy this year. Each year, the Student Senate oversees the nominations and elections for the Professor of the Year award which is presented during the President's Honors Ceremony.

The Senate hosted the 6th annual "Duke it Out" staff vs. student event, and "A Day in the Life" program for middle school students from Lakeside Middle School in Millville. Student Senate hosted its second "Cumberland's Got Talent" show and plans to have this as an annual event each May. The event boasted local talent, from singing and dancing to spoken word and acting.

Our students are amazing and continue to engage, inspire and transform the campus daily as they work to make Cumberland County College the best it can be.

The team finished the season with an unprecedented 23-5 record. Sophomore Alicia Cox became the first NJCAA All-American for the women's basketball program at Cumberland.

CCC Baseball put together a second straight winning season that resulted in a No. 4 seed in the region tournament. The Dukes of Cumberland finished their baseball season with an impressive 33-14 record to break the College's win record.

Dukes Athletics made great strides off the field this year with the introduction of a new logo and the launch of a new website, www.dukesathletics.com. The new site provides up-to-date news and scores, as well as an in-depth look at the athletics program and student-athletes.

Numerous CCC athletes achieved conference, region and national honors this year. Collectively, Cumberland's athletes tallied one National All-American, nine All-Conference, and seven All-Region designations. With the success of these outstanding athletes, Cumberland enjoyed some time in the national spotlight, producing five National Players of the Week and nine Conference Players of the Week.

Our student-athletes also excelled in the classroom, accumulating a total of 59 All-Academic honors during the academic year. Three of those honors came in the form of an exemplary academic achievement award issued by the NJCAA. Those three athletes were Stephani Read (Women's Soccer), Israel Trejo (Men's Soccer), and Tyler Haydak (Baseball).

Leading the entire nation in hits and triples, freshman Anthony Lopez was named first team All-Conference and first team All-Region XIX.

Dukes Women's Basketball defeated Brookdale in the Region XIX semi-final to advance to this year's finals after winning only two games a season ago.

Dukes Baseball boasted the highest single-season win total in CCC's history with an impressive 33-14 record.

CCC's student-athletes also understood the importance of volunteering. They were involved in numerous efforts that touched the community this year. These events included collecting food and assembling baskets for needy families at Thanksgiving, serving food at local churches during the College's Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Service Days, and organizing the second "Belle of the Ball" gown donation drive to help local girls attend their high school proms in style. In addition, the Women's Basketball team created a breast cancer awareness week in February, during which they wore pink uniforms at two home games, sold pink t-shirts reading "Play for a Cure," and hosted a mobile mammography unit that offered free mammograms to women ages 30-50.

Dukes Athletics is looking forward to raising the bar during the 2013-2014 campaign both athletically and academically, and through community involvement.

Student excellence recognized

Hundreds of students were inducted into academic honor societies including Phi Theta Kappa, the community college scholastic honor society; Alpha Beta Gamma, the Business and Computer Science honor society; Kappa Delta Pi, the Education honor society; Mu Alpha Theta, the Mathematics honor society; and Cumberland County College's new chapter of Alpha Delta Nu, the honor society of Associate Degree Nurses.

The creative talent of Graphic Design student Anthony Coffee was on display when his design took first place honors in the College's annual 2012 Holiday Card Design Competition. His creation was one of more than 54 entries in the competition. Each year since 2000, CCC students design greeting cards and the first-place entry is mailed to recipients throughout the United States as Cumberland County College's official holiday card. The competition gives students the opportunity to produce portfolio materials while promoting Cumberland's fine and graphic arts programs.

Cumberland County College student journalists captured five awards as part of this year's New Jersey Collegiate Press Association competition. The students competed against other participating New Jersey two-year colleges, and their entries were judged by 21 editors representing newspapers from throughout the state. Idris Caldwell won both first and second place in the "Deadline Reporting" category. Brandon Read won first place in "Sports Writing" and second place in the "Arts and Entertainment" category. The College's student newspaper, "The Voice," won third place honors in the "Layout and Design" category for staff members Thomas Arenz, Idris Caldwell, Dani Leach, Devan Paleschic, Candice Rivera and Don'a Smith.

Roxanne D'Amato and Nicholas DeSimone were named to the 2013 New Jersey All-State Academic Team. D'Amato and DeSimone were two of the 39 community college scholars to be honored by the New Jersey Council of County Colleges during its 19th annual Phi Theta Kappa Day celebration in Trenton in May.

One Book-One College marks its ninth year

Renowned author Joyce Carol Oates visited Cumberland County College in December as part of the "One Book-One College" reading campaign.

Oates' book, "Faithless: Tales of Transgression," was chosen by Cumberland County College as this year's reading selection. In this collection of stories, Oates explores the mysterious private lives of men and women with vivid, unsparing precision and sympathy. Oates dissects the psyches of ordinary people and their potential for good and evil with chilling understatement and lasting power.

The goal of the One Book-One College campaign is to encourage reading for pleasure, critical thinking, global awareness and multicultural understanding, and to get the campus and the community to bond by discussing relevant themes covered in a single book. Community members are also urged to read the book.

Race for education

The CCC Alumni Association hosted its second 5K Run and Campus Walk in April. Eighty-nine runners participated in the event. Top awards were given to the 5K overall male finisher, Nathan Fuller of Shiloh, who posted a time of 19:06; and to the best female finisher, Katie Nelson of Cedarville, who crossed the finish line at 22:44.

Proceeds from the event enable the CCC Alumni Association to help provide an affordable education to all Cumberland County residents.

Raab Holocaust Collection established

The Esther and Irving Raab Holocaust Collection at Cumberland County College was dedicated in April during Days of Remembrance, the national commemoration of the Holocaust. Housed in the College's library, the collection includes books, photographs, period pieces, personal artifacts, multi-media presentations and reference materials, some of which residents will be able to borrow.

Made possible by a generous $25,000 gift from the Raab Family Foundation, The Esther and Irving Raab Holocaust Collection is dedicated to the "Martyrs and Survivors of the Holocaust."

Dr. Paul Winkler, Executive Director for the State of New Jersey Commission on Holocaust Education, attended the dedication ceremony and explained how important this first step is for the community to raise awareness to future generations.

Both Esther and Irving Raab are Holocaust survivors, now living in Vineland. Esther Raab was one of only 300 Jews who, in 1943, rebelled and escaped from the death camp in Sobibor, Poland. In the 1990s, she was the subject of the play, "Dear Esther," which deals with the emotional chains the survivors carry throughout their lives. She was also the technical consultant for the CBS-TV film based on the play, "Escape From Sobibor."

Hispanic Outreach Forum

More than 60 educators, business owners, non-profit professionals and leaders from the Hispanic community attended Cumberland County College's first Hispanic Outreach Forum in the Luciano Conference Center in April. The objective of the forum was for Cumberland County College to establish a relationship with the Hispanic community in order to build collaborative partnerships.

Community leaders were encouraged to participate

A Tree Dedication Ceremony took place on campus in May to honor the late John S. Nichols. John's sister Roselee Roberts, left, niece Leigh Melton, and brother-in-law Art Roberts attended the ceremony. The accompanying plaque reads in part: "In loving memory of John S. Nichols Jr. A genuinely good man."

Esther and Irving Raab (seated) are joined by (from left) their son Abraham Raab; Dr. Keith Figgs, CCC Board of Trustees Chair; Dr. Thomas Isekenegbe, CCC President; Dr. Paul Winkler, Executive Director, NJ Commission on Holocaust Education; and their son Marvin Raab during the dedication of the Esther and Irving Raab Holocaust Collection in the Cumberland County College library.

Vineland Mayor Ruben Bermudez addresses the more than 60 educators and business leaders who attended the Hispanic Outreach Forum in April.

on the College's boards, including a newly developed Hispanic Advisory Board. The new advisory board will assist with identifying various roadblocks that can stand in the way of a student's success.

The keynote speakers of the forum were Julio Mendez, former chair of the Cumberland County College Board of Trustees, and Sasha Rodriguez, a student on track to graduate. The Hispanic Outreach Forum was made possible through a generous donation by Century Savings Bank.

A legacy of education

Cumberland County College's Visions Society, developed by the CCC Foundation, seeks to garner financial community support by encouraging people and businesses to designate Cumberland County College in their will or estate plans. Named gift opportunities also exist.

Gifts to the Visions Society will secure the development, growth and support of the extraordinary programs at CCC that impact the quality of life in Cumberland County. A list of current Visions Society members appears on page 24 of this publication.

Leadership Cumberland County

Last fall, 15 leaders from throughout the county began a personal and professional leadership journey as the newest class of Leadership Cumberland County.

This year's participants included:

Gina Beni - CEO Group, J & D Produce
Jim Boote - Inspira Health System
Derek Davis - UltraClean Technologies
Mea DeCouteau - General Mills Progresso
Valerie Digman - General Mills Progresso
Samantha Fisher - City of Millville
Nathan Frey - Vineland Public Schools
Kimberly Gauntt - Cumberland County Division of Tourism
Douglas Nicoll - Casa Di Bertacci
Barry Seay - SJ Water Conditioning
Kris Townsend - Big Brother/Big Sisters of Cumberland and Salem Counties
Dr. Mary Ann Westerfield - Cumberland County College
William Whelan - Colonial Bank
Chuck Wyble - Wyble Advertising
Denise Zemanik - Capital Bank

The 12th class of Leadership Cumberland County started with a two-day retreat held at the Luciano Conference Center during which the participants learned about personal leadership skills, as well as the assets and challenges of Cumberland County.

The class was divided into small groups and each developed an agenda for a learning day reflecting the themes of education, criminal justice, environment and sustainability, economic development, cultural diversity and tourism, health and human services, and governance. The learning days included panel discussions, tours, and site visits across the county. Private industries and public organizations permitted the class to observe their work and progress in providing jobs, delivering services, and making products that are distributed worldwide.

As a class, the group participated in a "Pay It Forward" project, each selecting a person or organization to which a donation of time and money could be made in an effort to encourage others to engage in public service. Ultimately, Leadership Cumberland County is designed to develop a commitment to civic engagement that will transform the region.

The recent graduates join an alumni network of more than 240 LCC participants across business, industrial, educational, nonprofit and governmental sectors. The 13th LCC class will begin in September 2013.

This year's Leadership Cumberland County class tours the Seabrook Educational and Cultural Center.

Cox was named the Garden State Athletic Conference Player of the Year, First-Team All-Region XIX and First-Team All-Conference.

School Counts!

A model for community collaboration

At a Glance

- More than 22,000 high school students have enrolled in the School Counts! program since it began in 2001.
- Some 12,000 School Counts! certificates have been issued to students in grades 9-12.
- More than 700 students have utilized the School Counts! scholarship.
- More than 240 School Counts! students have graduated from Cumberland County College with degrees.

School Counts! means many things to many people in Cumberland County. The program not only provides a work readiness credential for high school students and graduates but also an incentive to young school-aged children, a college tuition scholarship opportunity, a resource for employers and promise for a better community.

The School Counts! program has received national recognition for several years as an innovative model for community-based leadership. The benefits of the program are being realized within Cumberland County and beyond.

Students possessing the School Counts! credential have a competitive edge. By using a web-based employment bulletin, School Counts! partner employers can post job openings online. Employers benefit from free advertising while attracting highly-qualified individuals. Students benefit from quick leads and useful information.

Students who earn all four certificates in high school earn the opportunity for a tuition scholarship at Cumberland County College. Students who maintain the entry criteria and grade requirements have the chance to have their first two years of college, up to 60 tuition credits, paid. This opportunity helps many hardworking students, who may not have had the means otherwise, to attend college.

The School Counts! program continues to have a great impact on all residents of Cumberland County. All the business partners, donors, school leaders and community members who helped create and continue to support the program should rightfully take great pride in the success of School Counts!

Students learn that Attendance Counts!

The Attendance Counts! program helps prepare middle school students to participate in School Counts! once they enter high school. Students are motivated to arrive at school on time every day and achieve a 95 percent attendance rate for the academic year.

Through a partnership with Cumberland County College and the Bridgeton School District, more than 650 students in 6th through 8th grade met the attendance requirement and earned a chance to experience what it's like to be a college student by spending a day at Cumberland County College, as well as hearing from motivational speaker Idris Rahman from the "Steered Straight" organization.

More than 30 8th grade students from Woodruff School earned a special day at the College by achieving both the attendance and grade requirements of the School Counts! program, setting them up for continued success in high school.

The Millville and Vineland school districts also committed to the Attendance Counts! program, and will track both attendance and grades for all 8th graders during the next academic year.

The stakeholders in this program have recognized the importance of communicating and encouraging good attendance habits at the middle school level.

SJ Gas customers donate to School Counts!

South Jersey Gas customers are making a difference in the community's quality of life by participating in a check-off campaign conducted by SJ Gas to raise money for Cumberland County College's School Counts! scholarship program.

A check for $24,348 was recently presented by SJ Gas President Jeffrey DuBois to the CCC Foundation. This represents money donated by SJ Gas customers, who each donated $1 to School Counts! via their gas bills.

Cumberland County College: A vital community resource

Cumberland County College was the first community college in New Jersey to open its own campus in October 1966. Today, the College is dedicated to preparing students and community members for success in the ever-changing global environment.

Enrolling more than 4,000 students during the academic year, Cumberland County College is fully accredited by the Middle States Commission on Higher Education. More than 20,500 students have graduated from CCC since it opened.

Seventy percent of Cumberland's graduates continue their education at four-year colleges and universities. The College's graduates have successfully transferred to every college in New Jersey and scores of colleges and universities throughout America. Career program graduates become a vital part of the workforce.
